Netflix, 2009: the prize went to factorization

This weekend: Friday 10:00, the matchmaker

Netflix shared 100 million ratings and offered $1 million for guesses 10% better than its own system.

Netflix Prize rules (2006) and results (2009). Koren, Bell, Volinsky, IEEE Computer 2009. Narayanan and Shmatikov, IEEE S&P 2008. Netflix blog, 12 March 2010.

Netflix, 2009: the prize went to factorization

This weekend: Friday 10:00, the matchmaker

Netflix shared 100 million ratings and offered $1 million for guesses 10% better than its own system.

Result, on hidden ratings

10.06% better than Netflix's own system

100+ models, most of them factorizations

Netflix Prize rules (2006) and results (2009). Koren, Bell, Volinsky, IEEE Computer 2009. Narayanan and Shmatikov, IEEE S&P 2008. Netflix blog, 12 March 2010.

Netflix, 2009: the prize went to factorization

This weekend: Friday 10:00, the matchmaker

Netflix shared 100 million ratings and offered $1 million for guesses 10% better than its own system.

Result, on hidden ratings

10.06% better than Netflix's own system

100+ models, most of them factorizations

What it cost

Researchers matched the anonymous ratings to public ratings on IMDb and identified customers.

Netflix Prize rules (2006) and results (2009). Koren, Bell, Volinsky, IEEE Computer 2009. Narayanan and Shmatikov, IEEE S&P 2008. Netflix blog, 12 March 2010.

Netflix, 2009: the prize went to factorization

This weekend: Friday 10:00, the matchmaker

Netflix shared 100 million ratings and offered $1 million for guesses 10% better than its own system.

Result, on hidden ratings

10.06% better than Netflix's own system

100+ models, most of them factorizations

What it cost

Researchers matched the anonymous ratings to public ratings on IMDb and identified customers.

What Netflix decided

After a question from the FTC and a lawsuit, cancel the second prize (March 2010).

Netflix Prize rules (2006) and results (2009). Koren, Bell, Volinsky, IEEE Computer 2009. Narayanan and Shmatikov, IEEE S&P 2008. Netflix blog, 12 March 2010.